In the world of business, bonuses are extra payments granted to employees in recognition of their achieved goals and contribution to the overall performance of the company. There are different types of bonuses, such as bonus based on individual performance, bonus based on team goals and bonus based on the overall success of the company. In this article, we will talk about bonuses in general and how they work in Brazil, with a focus on two specific types: the annual bonus based on the overall performance of the company and the bonus for bankers in the financial sector. The annual bonus is based on the overall performance of the company during the financial year.

In the financial sector, the so-called "bankers" usually receive bonuses at the end of the financial year as a reward for the increase in profits of the bank or the relevant business, as shown in the annual accounts. This type of bonus is traditionally granted to some employees in the financial sector.

In summary, bonuses are an important reward tool used by the world of business to incentivize employees to reach goals and contribute to the overall success of the company. In Brazil, bonuses are generally based on individual performance, team performance or the overall success of the company. Besides, in the financial sector, the so-called "bankers" usually receive bonuses as a reward for the increase in profits of the bank or the relevant business.

Now that you know how bonuses work in Brazil, know how to evaluate your goals and individual contribution to know if you will be eligible for a bonus at the end of the financial year. Good luck!
