China and Belarus announced they were conducting joint training exercises military just miles from the border with Poland – a member of the NATO bloc.

The Belarusian Defense Ministry said that troops of the Popular Liberation Army arrived in Belarus at the end of last week. It published a series of {img}graphics showing Chinese forces unloading equipment from a military aircraft and said, for how to profit from sports betting time: the exercises will last 11 days from Tuesday to July 19 (local time).

NATO and the EU accuse Belarus of arming the borders, pushing the asylum seekers of third countries to its borders. The joint exercises will be without doubt seen by some as an additional provocation – especially when they take place on the eve of the 75th anniversary of the Washington DC E and on the day that the Ukrainian president Volodymyr Zelensky is visiting Poland (in English).

NATO contacted the Otan to comment.

The Chinese Defense Ministry said on Sunday that the exercises will include "rescue and counterterrorism operations".

"The training aims to improve the levels of formation and coordination of the participating troops, as well as to deepen practical cooperation between the armed forces of the two countries", it added.

The exercises are taking place near the Belarusian city of Brest, on the Belarus-Poland border which is about 130 miles (130 kilometers) from the Polish capital Warsaw and about 40 km [40] from the Minsk border with Ukraine.

Moscow used Belarus partially as a launch platform for a large-scale invasion of Ukraine, after gathering troops on the Ukrainian border during what it said were joint military exercises.

Chinese troops arrived in Belarus a few days after the country joined the Organization for Cooperation and Security in Asia (SCO). Founded in 2001 by China, Russia and Uzbekistan to fight terrorism on the border with Turkey. The SCO grew in the last few years as a measure that Beijing (China), Moscow – a transformation of the bloc from a regional security club in central Asia – was concentrating on geopolitical counterweight to Western-led institutions led by the United States or its allies.
