Almost four eleven sports online out of every 10 people in the USA are exposed to unhealthy levels of air pollution, a new report discovered. Four of the five most polluted cities are in California where forest fires and extreme heat drive up the quality of dangerous air.

More than 131 million people are exposed to harmful pollution from ozone and particles (PM 2.5), according to the annual State of the Air report from the American Lung Association. This number, which incorporates new federal standards that are more rigorous for particle contamination, represents an 11.7 million eleven sports online increase over the previous year.

Exposure to these pollutants can increase the risk of lung and heart disease, asthma attacks and reproductive problems.

"Climate change is not remote, nor is it abstract. It is a reality that affects millions of people every year," said Paul Billings, senior vice president for advocacy at ALA. Since the passage of the Clean Air Act in 1970, combined emissions of six major air pollutants have generally decreased, including PM 2.5, which fell 78%. But in recent years, the smoke from forest fires has reversed some of the progress in air quality and federal protection in the wake of federal protections for air quality from forest fires (PMI 2,5).

In 25 of the most polluted cities – including Fairbanks, Alaska; Boise and Idaho – the average number of days that residents are exposed to unhealthy levels of air pollution from particles increased eleven sports online from two to almost 21 days. "The number of days that people are exposed to unhealthy air has increased significantly," Billings said. "They are signaling the magnitude of forest fires and their impact on public health."

California is at the top of the list of states with the most polluted metropolitan areas, followed by Arizona. For the fifth year in a row, Bakerfield has the most pollution from particles in the country and Los Angeles is where there is the most ozone or smog eleven sports online everywhere.

People of color are more than twice as likely to live in eleven sports online counties with poor air quality, a legacy of racist practices that allowed for the installation of industrial plants, ports and major highways eleven sports online in marginalized neighborhoods.

"A lot of this has roots in redlining history," said Albert Presto, professor of mechanical engineering at Carnegie Mellon University. "Black people are more likely to live near an industrial area or a highway and consequently have more exposure [to pollution]."
